

Enrollment Management Recruitment Policy

In accordance with U.S. Department of Education regulations on Program Integrity, Regent University does not incentivize compensation based on securing enrollment (recruitment) and/or securing financial aid. The DOE defines compensation as any type of payment that is either direct or indirect which includes (but is not limited to): tuition sharing, profit sharing, salary adjustments based solely on enrollment or financial aid, payments based on the application of an admissions policy, and bonuses or other payments. The DOE also specifies activities that are subject to the ban on incentive compensation versus activities that are exempt.

All Regent University Enrollment Management employees are expected to understand and adhere to the DOE rules regarding Program Integrity. You can find a detailed report on Program Integrity at: <https://www2.ed.gov/policy/highered/reg/hearulemaking/2009/compensation.html>
